

Since landline telephone companies are required to offer local number portability, wireless companies should also be required to do the same.